

Humanities Newsletter Autumn 2017

So much creativity and inspirational work this term! It has been wonderful to see so many projects being brought into school of models, works of art and written accounts. All Key Stage Two classes have been given a purple book to record historical research using the History Take-Away projects that has been launched this term. The classes have studied specific civilisations and have compared the focused civilisation to another. Year 3 have been learning about the Stone Age: the first farmers and how people lived, describing similarities and differences. The Year 4 class have learned about the Ancient Greeks and what we can learn about them using artefacts, ruins and through Myths and Legends. In Year 5 the class have studied the mysterious Maya and in Year 6 the children have studied the Vikings by interpreting sources and creating their own historical saga about Ivar the Boneless.
